As amended, this bill would classify aggravated cruelty to animals as a Class A misdemeanor for a first offense and a Class E felony for a second or subsequent offense. It defines "aggravated cruelty" to mean "conduct which is done or carried out in a depraved and sadistic manner and which tortures or maims an animal." It would also exempt certain activities such as dispatching an animal in any manner

Horses and livestock would also be exempt from the bill. The program is now unofficially administered by two state agencies. The Department of Finance Administration will oversee the family violence shelter services. The department's Criminal Justice Office will focus primarily on funding the program, however, under the bill, the department will not have the authority to review the program's content or performance. The Department of Children's Services shall administer the child abuse prevention services. Each department shall receive 50% of the funds received by the state to fund the program.

The bill also removes the $50,000 cap on the amount of funds that any one shelter may currently receive. Under the legislation, the departments shall have the discretion to pay an agency any amount of money deemed necessary to cover provided services.
